Australia Awards for Africa – Tender for Education Providers to deliver Short Courses

Australia Awards for Africa (AAA) is part of the Australian Agency for International Development’s scholarships program that operates in developing countries. AAA will provide approximately A$400 million over five years towards supporting African development scholarships. AAA, through its implementing agency GRM International Pty Ltd (GRM), is seeking Expressions of Interest from providers to participate in the delivery of the following fifteen Short Course Awards:

- Agriculture – Dry land farming; Livestock management; Water harvesting; Post-harvest management
- Mining – Geospatial information systems; Occupational health and safety in the resources sector; Governance and regulation; Managing revenue flows; Managing corporate community relationships
- Public Policy – International Diplomacy, Organisational development, Public Private Partnership, Trade policy, analysis and negotiation; TVET reform; TVET teacher skills upgrade

These fifteen courses will be delivered twice in 2012 with an average minimum participant target of twelve participants per course. In this way, a total of 350 African students will be able to attend the courses.

To tender to deliver these Australian short courses in Australia and in Africa, you must be a Registered Training Organisation (RTO) in Australia or an Australian tertiary institution as defined in the Higher Education Support Act, 2003 Table A, B and C.

AAA provides African candidates with access to both Australian short and long-term awards. For information on AAA, visit www.adsafrica.com.au. AAA is a key delivery mechanism and integral part of the Australian Government’s development cooperation program in Africa. GRM manages the administrative and logistical operations of AAA.

An Industry Briefing will be held in Melbourne on July 5th 2011.
