Three questions

1. What has been the net contribution in jobs created by corporate organisations in the US and UK over the past 40 years?

2. What proportion of Chinese graduates are currently unemployed?

3. How many jobs do Middle East nations need to create over the next 10 years just to maintain an unemployment rate of 20%?
The City of Nottingham

Our Big Conversation

• If we didn't have colleges, would we need to invent them?

• What does Nottingham want to be famous for?

• What do we want to be when we grow up?

All Party Parliamentary Group Report on Local Growth, Local Enterprise Partnerships and Enterprise, June 2013

"Many FE colleges have recognised the need to ensure their provision meets local demand. New College Nottingham began its ‘Big Conversation’ in October 2011......The result has been the ultimate reorganisation of the college into five ‘prosperity’ clusters, each having a specific economic area of focus, helping the college to align its provision with critical local economic sectors."

The Richard Review of Apprenticeships, November 2012

"I also believe particularly strongly in our Further Education Colleges. Though there is an overly wide spread of quality in the sector, our best colleges are world leaders and are innovating in the delivery of apprenticeships. In some instances...they are creating Learning Companies, which are full-fledged businesses in their own right, wholly owned by the colleges; an innovation that I strongly endorse."
Lord Young’s Report: Growing Your Business, May 2013

"Many colleges have dedicated business development centres open to businesses for staff development and technology improvement. New College Nottingham, for instance, worked directly with 1,346 companies in 2011–12, of which 80% were SMEs."

Confederation of Business Industry (CBI): Tomorrow’s Growth, August 2013

"The New College Nottingham Academy of Construction is the largest provider of construction training in the East Midlands. Industry representatives, including the Nottingham Construction Forum, are proactively involved in the design of provision and focus of the College’s construction portfolio to ensure alignment with local industry need."
